

Lawrence Terms State Shortway 'Necessity' Soviet Union Opposes U.S. Suggestions For Arctic

Reds Blast Inspection Proposal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union brushed aside and vetoed President Eisenhower's proposal for a military inspection system in the polar regions.

Before casting the 833rd veto by the Soviet Union in the Security Council, Ambassador Arkady A. Sobolev denounced the Eisenhower plan as a gimmick intended to enable the West to spy on Soviet territory. He also criticized Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld for coming out in favor of the U. S. plan.

The vote was 10-1 for the U. S. resolution proposing that technical talks start at once on the setting up of a system designed to avert the threat of massive air attack across the polar regions. But the one negative vote by the Soviet Union, under Security Council procedure, killed the proposal.

In an effort to avoid a Soviet veto the United States accepted a Swedish amendment saying the technical talks could prove valuable in disarmament talks at a summit meeting. Sobolev said this did not change the negative nature of the U. S. proposal.

Assurances

The Soviet Union disregarded also assurances from Secretary of State Dulles and reiterated by U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge that setting up of an inspection system might make unnecessary polar flights of the U. S. Strategic Air Force. The Soviet Union charged that the planes carrying nuclear weapons in flights toward its borders could accidentally trigger World War III.

Lodge assailed the veto, saying it proved to the entire world that Moscow "is more interested in increasing tension and anxiety than in finding ways and means to prevent surprise attack."

The Security Council then voted down 9-1 with Sweden abstaining a Soviet resolution asking that the Security Council call on the United States to end its polar region flights, and refer inspection and all other measures to a summit meeting.

The United States sought an international inspection system in the region providing for advance notification of flights and movements of military significance. It suggested radar monitoring of flights and provision also for ground inspection posts.

Livengood Invades Northampton

NORTHAMPTON (AP) — William S. Livengood Jr., independent candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, met last night with GOP clubs in Northampton County after declaring his campaign in high gear.

Livengood came here from Allentown where he told reporters his campaign had progressed wonderfully and he believed in a strong finish.

"I have demonstrated my ability as a campaigner, which will be badly needed this fall," he said. "The party can't sell the candidates—the candidates will have to sell the party."

Livengood said he feels he is the best qualified by training and by experience of any of the candidates. The former secretary of Internal Affairs said he knows the workings of state government better than any of his opponents.

SWOOSH!!! And away it goes leaving but a thin trail of white smoke—Ray Davies of Stroudsburg, Tobyhanna Signal Depot Safety Director, is shown setting off the missile on its free ballistic flight to the wild blue yonder. The miniature missile firing demonstration will be one of the "highlights" of "Tobyhanna Days", in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg on May 8, 9 and 10. (U. S. Army Photo)

20 Missiles To Be Fired Next Week

IF A parachute containing a miniature missile drops out of the sky and at your feet on Saturday afternoon, May 10, pick it up.

It will mean a prize from one of the cooperating merchants in the twin-boroughs participating in the fourth annual Tobyhanna Days, May 8 through 10.

The parachute drops will be the end result of a missile-firing demonstration to take place simultaneously outside the Signal Corps exhibits in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

The missiles, 20 in all, will take off with a swoosh, leaving a thin trail of white smoke. Following the short, two-second propulsion period, the missile will coast upward in free ballistic flight.

At the peak of its 1,000-foot ascent, just as the model starts to fall back to the ground, the parachute ejection charge contained in the rocket motor will activate, blowing off the missile nose and ejecting the parachute. The parachute will then fill with air and lower the entire missile back to the ground.

The miniature missile-firing demonstration will be one of the highlights of Tobyhanna Days, which Chairman Jesse Plesner predicts will be "the greatest ever this year."

Spur Efforts

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers yesterday stepped up efforts to reach agreement on a new contract.

Air Force Chief Backs Ike's Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, went down the line for President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plan yesterday. He said separate ground, sea, and air warfare is "gone forever."

Unlike some other military leaders, White gave 100 percent endorsement to the reorganization bill at hearings before the House Armed Services Committee.

Asked whether he had any suggestions on a substitute bill, the Air Force leader said no.

Agreement

"I completely agree with the President's concept that separate ground, sea, and air warfare are gone forever and that peacetime preparation and organization must conform to that fact," White told the congressmen.

"It is essential that our combat forces be organized into . . . unified commands and that our strategic and tactical planning be completely unified."

Critical comments from some members of the House committee punctuated the hearing. Rep. Herbert (D-La.) said Eisenhower in 1953 was certain that secretaries of the armed services and chiefs of staff should be part of the chain of command of combined combat forces but now wants to take them out of the chain.

Rep. Kilday (D-Tex.) remarked that in 1953 Eisenhower had issued orders placing the secretaries in the line of command.

"Things have changed," said Rep. Gavin (R-Pa.). "We were thinking in terms of artillery then, missiles now. Maybe there is a reason for the President to take a different position."

"The fundamentals of the chain of command haven't changed since the days of the Roman legions," Hebert replied.

Olyphant Pupils Enjoy Holidays

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Some 600 students in the high, junior high and elementary schools of Olyphant Borough enjoyed an unscheduled vacation Friday for the second straight day.

Their teachers, 22 of them, stayed home on the "sick" list. The teachers are protesting payless pay days for the months of February, March and April.

Good Morning!

Thrill is a wonderful thing . . . and who hasn't wished his ancestors had practiced it more.

Target Date Announced For Project

(Record Harrisburg Bureau)

HARRISBURG — Target date for completion of the Broadhead-McMichael Creeks flood protection project is December, 1960, the Daily Record learned yesterday.

This date was given by Clifford H. McConnell, chief of the Division of Flood Control of the State Department of Forests and Waters.

An order to prepare final plans for the project has been given by the department to Fridy-Gauker-Truscott and Fridy, consulting engineers of Philadelphia.

The progress schedule calls for advertising for bids for construction of the project next October. The bids are to be opened in late November.

Original Plan

It had originally been planned by the department to have construction started this Summer but the delay by Stroudsburg in agreeing to be a sponsor of the project made that impossible, McConnell stated.

Total costs to the Commonwealth are estimated at $2,776,565. Costs to the sponsors, the boroughs of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg and Monroe County, are estimated at $211,106.

Main features of the project are: Construction of approximately 7,000 feet of earth levees, 360 feet of concrete walls and channel widening, deepening and straightening of Broadheads Creek.

Construction of approximately 1,700 feet of earth levee, 165 feet concrete wall and pumping station on McMichael Creek. Construction of miscellaneous drainage facilities.

Dulles Views Action As 'Tragic'

DURHAM, N. H. (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles said last night Russia's veto of President Eisenhower's arctic inspection plan is frightening and tragic.

Dulles departed from the prepared text of a foreign policy speech to deplore the Soviet Union's veto of the plan in the U. N. Security Council earlier in the day.

"At the choice of the Soviet Union," Dulles said, "the fears and risk continue. They continue for one reason alone, and that is because the Soviet Union rejects international inspection against surprise attack."

"The significance of that is frightening," Dulles declared. "The result is tragic. It means that at the will and choice of the Soviet Union we shall have to go on living on the edge of an awful abyss from which we could so readily be rescued if only the Soviet Union did not insist upon retaining for itself the possibility of massive surprise attack."

Dulles said "we refuse to be discouraged" and added: "We remain willing to join in any dependable arrangement which will reduce the risk of surprise or accidental attack or, on a fair basis, reduce armaments."

Five Goals

He said rulers in the Kremlin have set five main goals in their drive for world domination. He said it would be reckless to allow them to achieve any of the goals.

In a far-ranging foreign policy speech, Dulles urged free peoples everywhere to make "a sustained sacrificial effort" to keep Moscow from:

1. Permanent domination of Eastern European nations.
2. Continuing the partition of Germany on uniting the country under conditions forcing it into the Communist camp.
3. Dismantling American-backed defense alliances such as the 15-nation Atlantic Pact.
4. Achieving diplomatic recognition of Red China by the United States or its admittance into the United Nations, while winning acceptance of Peking's claim to Formosa.
5. Wiping out Western trade controls that limit strategic war goods shipments to the Communist bloc.

Court Clears Three Of Extortion

NEW YORK (AP) — A Bronx County Court jury yesterday acquitted a 70-year-old woman physician and two co-defendants of extortion and conspiracy charges.

Dr. Stella S. Epstein and Ralph Mascucci, 31, both of Manhattan and Marie Billotti, 32, of Yonkers, N.Y., were cleared of charges they extorted $2,000 from a Negro building superintendent of a Bronx apartment house owned by Dr. Epstein.

Superintendent

The superintendent, William Meyers, who cannot read and write, testified that the defendants accused him of failing to deposit all the rent money he collected.

Meyers said Mascucci, posing as a detective and Miss Billotti visited him in November, 1955, and told him he would have to repay the alleged shortages. Miss Billotti described herself as a friend of Dr. Epstein, he said.

Meyers also testified that between November, 1955 and the following November, $160 was deducted monthly from his $208 pay check.

The verdict was returned to Judge William Lyman after two hours of deliberation.

BANDUNG, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno for the first time yesterday accused the United States of intervening on the rebels' side in the Indonesian rebellion.

Spending, Taxes Held Key Recession Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling for bold action to meet the recession, the head of the National Planning Assn. yesterday urged a four-billion-dollar increase in government spending and a tax reduction of seven to eight billion dollars.

"In this situation I think it is more prudent to err on the side of action too boldly than too timidly," said H. Christian Sonne, NPA board chairman.

He advanced his proposals at a hearing of the House Banking Committee, which is considering legislation to relieve unemployment.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California predicted the Senate will pass an administration-backed bill to extend the duration of unemployment relief payments by 50 percent. The legislation sailed through the House Thursday after a broader-scaled Democratic measure was voted down.

Knowland, after a White House conference with President Eisenhower, told newsmen the President was very pleased by the House action.

The Senate Finance Committee is scheduled to start hearings on the legislation May 12.

Sonne told the House committee that NPA's program of tax reduction and government spending may be premature, but he said greater harm may result from action which may turn out to be inadequate, and he added:

"Further action during this session of Congress cannot long be delayed."

It may be true that the problems of inflation have not yet been mastered, he said, but: "It would, however, be defeatist if because of our fear that we will be unable to master the problems of possible future price rise, we decide to run the risk of prolonging mass unemployment and leaving productive capacity unutilized."

"Taking this risk is unjustified in any event," he said. "In a period of coexistence with a hostile rival system of economic, social and political organization it would be unforgivable."

Candidate Takes Stand In Letter

DAVID L. Lawrence, Pittsburgh mayor and Democratic organization-backed candidate for nomination as Governor, terms the Keystone Shortway a "necessity" and has pledged himself for its "construction at the fastest practicable speed."

In a letter to C. E. Noyes, Keystone Shortway Assn. executive director, Lawrence said yesterday:

"I was for the road from the beginning and I am for it now." The letter did not, however, contain a statement pledging Lawrence to work for Shortway completion by 1965 — the goal set by the Association in its present drive to push construction ahead.

Major excerpts from the Lawrence letter to Noyes follow:

"I certainly appreciate this opportunity to reiterate my views on the value and the necessity of the Keystone Shortway and on the desirability to carry forward its construction at the fastest practicable speed."

"As you are probably aware, I have been outspoken, for some time, in my support of the Shortway. I need not point out, either, that Governor Leader and the State Department of Highways applied to the Bureau of Public Roads for inclusion of the Shortway on the Interstate system only six days after the 1956 Federal Highway Act was approved by the President. "The Governor and the Highways Department fought vigorously and determinedly to get Federal approval of the project. In that effort they were joined by others, such as your organization, and by the Allegheny Conference on Community Development, a Pittsburgh civic group with which I have had the closest relationship and on whose board of sponsors I serve."

"Federal approval finally came on May 22, 1957."

Week's Time

"Within a week's time, the State employed consulting engineers to make location studies for the 300-mile highway, which now are well along toward completion."

"As for myself, I have joined with groups in the Allegheny Valley, not only to push the Shortway forward, but to achieve a link between that roadway at Brookville and the great Allegheny Valley. As a matter of fact, I spoke at the organization meeting of the Allegheny Valley Association and serve that group as a member of its Advisory Council."

"I have also advocated construction of a highway between Erie and Pittsburgh, which would intersect with western sections of the Shortway."

"All of this is spelled out to impress upon you that I am no Johnny-come-lately as far as the Keystone Shortway is concerned."

"I was for the road from the beginning and I am for it now. I am confident my position is based upon sound reasoning."

"Pennsylvania, to be competitive, must have a modern, properly located highway system. The Shortway will open up many of our northern and central counties for the industrial development they urgently need. It will provide access to the natural resources that are bountiful in this area."

"It will make Pennsylvania a more cohesive state, serving not only as an east-west route, but connecting with north-south highways such as the Erie-Pittsburgh Freeway and the Anthracite Expressway between Scranton and Harrisburg; with the Allegheny Valley highway, to which I have referred; with the existing Northeast extension of the Turnpike; and with Route 611 (the Penn-Cam Expressway) into Philadelphia."

"The latter two links are especially important because they provide greatly improved access to the Philadelphia area and its fast-expanding port facilities."

"Few public works are more important to this state, to its growth and its prosperity, than its highway system. We must push forward with all our energy and skill to build new roadways and to improve existing ones."

Fire School Expected To Attract 130 Students From Organizations In County

MONROE COUNTY Firemen's Assn. officials met last night for last minute preparations for the second annual fire school to be held today and tomorrow.

Instructors and officials reported that thus far 62 firemen have registered to attend the classes which will be held between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at the tower on East Stroudsburg's borough playgrounds and the Burgoon property in Stroudsburg's North Fifth Street.

A total of 130 registrations is expected today, officials predicted.

Fire equipment to be used in the school range from a 35-year-old American LeFrance pumper to the most modern apparatus. In addition to the use of six pieces of fire-fighting equipment, manufacturers will provide representatives and new equipment for demonstration.

Seventeen instructors will be in charge of those attending, and they will direct actual practice in fighting a 30-foot pit fire, dwelling blaze, concealed fire and small fire.

Classes will be aimed at forest fire control, salvage, ladder and rescue work, pumping and hose practices, classification of fires, forcible entry and fire tools.

No Injuries In Crash

NEW YORK (AP) — A Miami-New York airliner overshot a runway at Newark airport yesterday. And at Idlewild, a big transatlantic plane landed safely with one of its eight wheels missing. There were no injuries on either plane.

The four-engine Eastern Air Lines plane with 47 persons aboard came into Newark on instruments during a fog. It ended up in a sandlot about 300 feet off the end of a 7,000-foot runway.

"We just ran out of runway," a crew member explained.

Landing wheels on the plane were ripped off and one engine caught fire. But the fire was quickly doused and the passengers climbed out of the rear door with no show of panic.

Normal Grad On Tour Of Big Pocono

A FAMOUS Philadelphia columnist paid a return visit to Monroe County yesterday.

His name was John Cummings. And he's the Inquirer's inside-line columnist, a man who knows his way around courthouses and legislative chambers all over the State.

Cummings is a graduate of East Stroudsburg Normal School, Class of '08. Yesterday's visit almost amounted to a junior-size class reunion.

On hand to greet Cummings at the Penn-Stud Hotel for lunch was fellow-alumnus Montgomery F. Crowe, former State senator and now president of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce.

"Monty's recollections of Cummings are pungent and humorous. Ditto the columnist's remembrance of the local man."

Primary Purpose

Primary purpose of the Philadelphia local journey: To get a good view of Big Pocono State Park. The trip was made after lunch and Cummings was considerably impressed by what he saw, apparently.

Among those making the brief tour with him: B. K. Williams, local industrialist; Alex Bensinger; H. L. Cleveland, local assemblyman; Crowe and Clifford Heller, most of them members of the Chamber's Big Pocono Park Committee. The group is working for a bigger, better park which might include a public amphitheatre.

On hand to greet them at the top of Big Pocono: George Raish, the man who is perhaps more responsible than anyone else for the improvements and enlargements which have been made at Big Pocono. Raish is Big Pocono forester.

Cummings climbed the fire tower; spent 10 minutes talking with Raish's daughter, Mrs. Esther Motts. Esther has been working as a tower observer since she was a teen-aged girl.

Subject Of Area Service Announced

HOW SIN and suffering are overcome through spiritual understanding of God will be brought out at Christian Science services tomorrow by the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Everlasting Punishment."

Readings from the Bible will include the following from James (4:8): "Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double minded."

Readings

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" of which Mary Baker Eddy is the author will be read the following (239:16): "To ascertain our progress, we must learn where our affections are placed and whom we acknowledge and obey as God. If divine Love is becoming nearer, dearer, and more real to us, matter is then submitting to Spirit. The objects we pursue and the spirit we manifest reveal our standpoint, and show what we are winning."

All are cordially invited to attend the services at First Church of Christ Scientist, Monroe and 8th St., Stroudsburg.

Rev. Ulmer To Speak

SAYLORSBURG—Rev. Harold Ulmer will speak tomorrow on "Withered Hands," at St. Peter's EUB Church.

Sunday School is at 10:30 a. m. The pastor teaches this week. Preparation will be made for Mother's Day program.

Family To Be Feature Of Service

TOMORROW to May 11 has been established as "National Family Week."

This week is intended to rekindle the church's interest in families—in the areas of worship, recreation, and education. The week also provides an excellent occasion for families to consider themselves before God and to take stock of their unique situations.

The East Stroudsburg Methodists begin this week with a special emphasis upon the values to be secured in Family Week.

In the worship at 11 a. m. the entire service is centered around the theme of National Family Week, "Your Home A Household For God."

Rev. Harold C. Eaton will speak upon the arresting caption, "Saints Alive."

Wally and Donna Hornbrook, ministers of music of the church, have sought to accentuate further the general spirit of the week. The Junior Church and the children's sermon present the thought of the faith of the "least of these in the Kingdom of God."

One Service

There will be only one service of worship in the church this Sunday. The worship at 7:30 p. m. will be held in the St. John's Lutheran Church in Stroudsburg under the auspices of the Music Study Club of the Stroudsburgs. A service of worship has been planned by the club with several community ministers taking part. Wally Hornbrook will be the guest soloist.

Both Youth Fellowships will meet tomorrow night. The Intermediates, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Rachel Sarley, have invited the Mount Pocono Junior Methodist Youth Fellowship to be their guests and the pastor of the Mount Pocono Church, Rev. James Mori, will be the speaker. "He will bring a report on the Methodist Camping Facilities at Camp IN Na Ba."

The Seniors will meet in the Parish House basement at 6 p. m. and will hold a group discussion.

Altar flowers for the day are presented by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Avery whose daughter, Susan, will be united in Holy Matrimony to Eugene Umphrey today at 2 p. m.

A nursery will be held in the Parish House during the morning worship.

Topic Set For Sermon

DELAWARE — "No One to Help," will be the subject of the sermon, tomorrow morning at 11, by Rev. Luther Markin, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of The Mountain.

The Senior choir will sing "In His Love Abiding," by Ira Wilson.

Measles

Owing to so many cases of Measles, the junior choir will not sing an anthem.

Mrs. Paul Maxwell will serve as organist and choir director in the absence of James Anthony.

Rev. Philip R. Doyle

Classes Open To All Ages At Church

CLASSES from nursery through adult ages are provided by the Church School of East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church beginning at 9:45 a. m. tomorrow with Gilbert Dunning directing.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Caputo will be at the door to welcome friends to the morning Worship at 11.

The nursery will be staffed by Mrs. Delbert France and Miss Susan France. Mrs. LeRoy Kleinle will serve as Junior Choir Mother.

"The Sign of the Living Christ" will be the sermon topic presented by Rev. Frank W. Wingerter.

Memorial flowers are being placed by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Reimer in memory of Mrs. Reimer's mother, Mrs. A. D. Wamaker.

Both Junior and Church Choirs will sing under the direction of Ernest Michelfelder, organist.

Senior Choir

The Senior Choir will render the anthem "I Am Alpha and Omega" (John Stainer) and the Junior Choir sings "All Things Beautiful and Fair" (Peery).

At 2:30 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. David Ball and their assistants will stage a Bible Class Rally for those who attend "Release-Time Week-End Religious Classes," and for all interested friends. Miss Anne Cucciaroni Missionary to Italy will be guest speaker.

There will be Bible-drill play-offs songs and other features.

Teenagers will meet at the Westminster Fellowship at 6:30 p. m.

Members of the Dorcas Circle meet with Mrs. C. M. Armstrong, 223 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, Monday at 1:30 p. m.

Mrs. E. R. Chiappa will be hostess to the Lydia Circle at her home, 344 East Brown St.

The Board of Deacons come together Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Church. The regular monthly meeting of the Trustees is postponed 'till next Tuesday, May 13. Choir rehearsals are Thursday at 6:45 and 7:45 p. m.

Rev. Blatt Announces Sermon Topic

"PUT YE ON The Lord Jesus Christ" is the unique way in which the writer of the Epistle to the Romans challenges those whom he expects to read his letter, that they might become consecrated followers of Jesus the Christ.

The minister of Zion United Church of Christ, Rev. Frank Blatt, has selected this passage as the basis for his remarks at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow.

My Lord is Waiting in the Garden by Gruber, will be sung as a duet by Victor Koch and Leslie Traub and the Senior Choir of the church under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Dunn with Mrs. Lucy Quig at the console will sing "Walk With Me Now Lord Jesus" by Mary Ott.

The flowers for the service will be placed in the altar vases by the Consistory of the church.

Ushers

Ushers at the service will be George Shick, Leon Marsh, Harry Hoffman and Clinton Warner while Douglas Williams will serve as acolyte.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Halstead will greet the worshippers before the service and Mrs. Hugh Altomero will have charge of the Nursery for pre-school age children beginning at 10:45 a. m.

The teen-age Youth Fellowship will meet at 6 p. m. and the Sunday School orchestra will rehearse at 6:30 p. m.

At 7:30 p. m. the Music Study Club of the community will present its annual music program as a part of the observance of National Music Week at St. John's Lutheran Church.

Tuesday at 2 p. m. the regular meeting of the Mizpah Bible Class will be held in the church parlor.

Tuesday at 9 a. m. the beginning of 19th annual session of Eastern Pennsylvania Synod will be held in Zion Church, Bethlehem.

Wednesday will feature a convention of Synodical sessions.

Rev. Moore To Deliver Sermon

CANADENSIS — Rev. Edgar B. Moore will give a sermon entitled "The Immediacy of Christ's Response" tomorrow morning at the Canadensis Methodist Church.

The Scripture Lesson will be from St. Luke, chapter 13, verses 10-19.

The sacrament of baptism will be bestowed upon the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William Helbig and upon the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alviron VanDriessen. There will also be a reception of new members into the church.

Organ Console

The Junior and Senior choirs will both sing at the services tomorrow morning. In the absence of George Bissett, Mrs. Blaine Siglin will be at the organ console.

The Sunday School will convene at 9:30 a. m. and the Youth Fellowship will meet in the church at 7 p. m. Mrs. Larson will be in charge of the nursery during the worship service.

On Monday night at 7 p. m. the Board of Trustees will meet in the church and at 8 p. m. the Official Board will meet.

Love and marriage—one of the thresholds of life. Approaching it are the happy strides of youth. Beyond it, joy for some, sorrow for others.

And how long the world has searched for a formula that would test the quality of love . . . a standard that would assure happiness in marriage.

Until finally, with remarkable wisdom, we've begun to realize that it all depends on the individuals themselves.

But, of course, there are two individuals! How can we provide both with the qualities of character that will enrich their marriage?

The Church believes the answer lies in continuous religious training and wholesome boy and girl activities. With deep concern for the individual, the couple, and the community, it is building the character of America's youth . . . safeguarding for tomorrow as well as today the sanctity of marriage, home and family.

Have you a son or daughter? Have they a church?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Worthwhile School

If you glance toward the horizon in the next two days and see smoke billowing up, you can be sure there's a fire, all right, but chances are you won't need to become worried.

Five will get you ten the smoke will be coming from the Burgoon property at the end of N. Fifth St., where the Monroe County Firemen's Assn. will be conducting its annual fire school.

To someone passing by who enjoys watching a spectacular fire, the long tongues of flame and black columns of smoke might provide some sort of a thrill. But don't get the idea the firemen will be playing.

They'll be dead in earnest as they go methodically about the serious task of learning how to fight various types of fires. The volunteers will be practicing modern scientific methods of combatting a 30-foot pit fire, dwelling fire, concealed fire and small fire.

Their training will not end there, however. There'll be plenty of classroom work and field instruction dealing with such subjects as forest fire control, salvage, ladder and rescue work, pumping and hose practices, classification of fires, forcible entry and fire tools.

Most people, we believe, recognize the great contribution volunteer firemen make to the community in the fighting of fires. Not everyone, however, realizes that many hours are given freely by these men at their weekly drills and yearly fire schools so they can keep abreast of modern fire-fighting methods and advanced designs in equipment.

The fact that our fire companies in Monroe County are made up of high-type, civic-minded citizens is something for which we all can be truly thankful.

Capital Creates Jobs

Holding a job is one thing. Raising the capital which creates a job is something else.

The National Industrial Board has compiled up-to-date figures on how much capital investment is required "per production worker." It says the figure now stands at $16,000 — an increase of 80 per cent in 10 years.

In other words, to create a new job in industry, somebody or some way must be found to put up $16,000 for tools, equipment, a plant and all the related items.

A new job isn't just a case of putting a man to work. The situation can be illustrated in the editor's office itself.

There's no job for an editor until money has been provided for a plant, for linotype machines and printing presses, matrixes of type faces and tons of newsprint.

He can't start to work without a typewriter, supplies, telephone and wire services. Advertising must be generated, and facilities provided for distribution of the finished product.

All of this costs money which is called "capital outlay" or capital investment. Seldom, indeed, can a man applying for a job contribute in cash his share of the capital outlay required to produce or maintain his job.

He depends either upon stockholders or management to raise this money. If it comes from stockholders, it represents risk capital put out as an investment.

If it comes from management, it represents an expenditure of a portion of earnings. In either case it is job-creating money which the jobholder does not individually provide.

In our capitalistic system, we in America depend upon each other and so there should be a distribution to each of the earnings of our industry; wages for those who handle the jobs, dividends for stockholders who provide capital, and profits for companies wherein all jobs are correlated into a marketable finished product.

The Pennsylvania Story

He Likes People

EDITOR'S NOTE: Columnist Harold J. Vaughn has been asked each of the six candidates for Pennsylvania's gubernatorial nomination to express in a few words WHY he, in particular, should be given the gubernatorial nomination and over his opponent in the May 20 primary election — not what his campaign promises might be as much as what he has to offer in the way of leadership to the state.

By Harold J. Vaughn
Republican Gubernatorial Candidate

Harrisburg—Six short weeks ago they asked: "Who's he?" Today, in many Pennsylvania communities the "men in the street" will tell you: "He shook my hand when he was here yesterday. He's a great guy. I've read about the others—but he's got my vote."

Maybe that's why they say I ought to be nominated. I thoroughly enjoy being among people. I like to just a little with them, listen seriously to their point of view. I respect them as individuals and I know they like it that way.

Some office-seekers have tried to file them away with this group or that group. I don't. To me people are still "the most important persons on earth"—and I try to convince everyone of this point.

But doesn't a Republican candidate for governor have to show more than that? He sure does . . . and I well know that fact.

Judging Capacity
For the last ten years I have been working with men. I have learned to judge character, ability, the capacity to do an appointed job. You have to—or you are out of business. State government is the same way.

Right now we're on a downhill plunge because political influence has prohibited appointing the right man to the right job.

All fine and good, say some of the more wary voters—but how's Vaughn going to get elected without promising some jobs?

Some say: "We know he isn't the hand-picked candidate of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, but he must be obligated to someone. How about strings on that out-of-state money backing another one of his opponents? Maybe he's getting a little of it, too."

None of this is remotely true. My endorsements have come from Citizens' Committees in Beaver, Butler and Mercer counties. . . . My campaign funds right out of my own pocket plus donations of under ten dollars from individual supporters. It's going to stay that way.

Good government starts (or ends) when the governor takes office. He's the executive, the head man. If he stays in the clear right from the start of the primary campaign there's an excellent chance of four years of honest, efficient government.

He'll be able to appoint cabinet secretaries and key department supervisors on the basis of their knowledge and practical experience, without political interference.

But if the candidate for governor has "sold out" even before the general election, hold onto your hat, your pants, and your wallet.

You're in for another slide of "do-nothing," inefficient, expensive government, regardless of the party or political machine in control.

On the other hand, you have the picture of Harold J. Vaughn that many voters hold as they urge his nomination in the May 20 primary. I am a family man, father of two boys, proud of my birth in Pennsylvania. My ancestors fought for liberty right here in the American Revolution.

I resent the fact that the "so-called" professional politicians have let my native state fall from national leadership. . . . I intend to do something about it. . . . intelligently.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Labor Barons

The labor bill that Congress is bound to pass, however weak, will be annoying to the labor barons.

He refused to keep the check for the third month, giving it to his old law firm, McBride, Von Moschizker and Bradley. He also acknowledged that he received and accepted a Christmas gift of $500 three days after he was named Attorney General by the Governor of the State of Pennsylvania. He volunteered this testimony.

The Senate committee has accused Raymond Cohen and Joseph Grace, president of the local, of being short $491,000 of union funds. McBride's testimony before the committee was that he never worked for Cohen but for the union.

"The Philadelphia Inquirer," commenting on this situation, said:

"It was a refreshing interlude, in one sense, yesterday, when Pennsylvania's Attorney General McBride voluntarily appeared before the McClellan Committee to resent and repel, as we think he had every right to do, the casual inclusion of his name in testimony the preceding day as recipient — before he became Attorney General — of legal fees as attorney for Local 107. The McClellan Committee would be well advised to avoid such incidents involving unmerited by-the-way smears of individuals."

The answer, of course, is that when a committee investigates, names come up and when they appear, they must be investigated. Therefore no one can "resent and repel" what is in the record, namely that McBride's name appeared on union checks subsequent to his appointment as Attorney General.

There may be an excellent and valid explanation, but the fact that a man is an Attorney General or any other kind of a public functionary does not and ought not to safeguard him from investigation by a Congressional committee seeking information about union funds or any other matter concerning the state of the nation.

Attorney General McBride knows this as well as any other lawyer does and he would act as Senator McClellan did were he in the Senator's place. The fact that he appeared voluntarily is an acknowledgment of the right of Congress to obtain information.

Meanwhile, the question ought to be asked, what happens to missing union funds? Who gets the dough? This is the essential question at issue and ought not to be lost in extraneous matter.

You're Telling Me

Citizens of a California town have just voted by an even larger margin than they did in 1946 to keep the playing of draw poker legal in their community. Seems some of the opposition must have gotten lost in the shuffle.

Shakespeare wouldn't have had to ask his famous question, "What's in a name?" if he had attended a Pueblo, Colo., YMCA party and won the door prize there. That's what it was — a full-sized door!

New Novel To Create Comment

The Bankrupts, by Brian Glanville, 259 Pages, Doubleday.

Reviewed by Lester Cohen
American Novelist

Some years ago I wrote a novel named "Sweepings." It has been reissued in paperback. In the original a tough Chicago Irish girl tells her husband, a Jew, that their baby "looks like a Chinaman." The editors of the paperback edition changed this to "looks like a Chinese."

I cite this as an example of what seems to me an oversensitivity about race, racial origin, etc. I do not know why "Chinaman" is any more insulting than "Frenchman." At any rate no tough Chicago Irish girl ever said the baby "looks like a Chinese."

It seems to me that literature and life both lose by a conformity with what is supposed to be "nice." I use these remarks as a way of getting around to discussing "The Bankrupts" by a young English novelist, Brian Glanville.

"The Bankrupts" is a very slight novel, built in a very trite formula, that no one would pay any attention to except that it drags at an old nerve of the human race — the Jews.

The Jews of Mr. Glanville's book live in London, the title is expressive of their moral and spiritual bankruptcy. They are dress manufacturers and such, financially they do well enough.

Their supposedly funny remarks are similar to those made by many of the middle class in the United States, the pony tails of the girls and the rock and roll dance places seem the same.

In fact, they are quite like many other people, except that they use occasional yiddish expressions. The glimpse of their synagogue, with its books printed in both Hebrew and English reminds one of the books in many "reformed" congregations.

Yet there will be an outcry about this book because its people are said to be Jews. The author treats them no more roughly than Sinclair Lewis treated the spiritual bankrupts of Main Street. Mr. Glanville is not nearly as rough as Tom Wolfe was about his own family in Look Homeward Angel.

There is one tremendous difference — Sinclair Lewis and Thomas Wolfe were men of genius who provided characters — Mr. Glanville has little cardboard cut-outs, reminiscent of thousands of books, plays, motion pictures.

Yet there will be some kind of reading public for his book and some kind of outcry — because the characters are Jews. There are Jews in the United States just like these characters, Jews with no manners and little interest in anything but money and conforming.

Isaiah and Jesus spoke out against such Jews. Liam O'Flaherty in The Informer spoke out against grubby Irishmen — there were riots in Ireland when his work was to be put upon the stage. Cervantes made mock of the idiotic conformity of the Spaniard — and Cervantes couldn't get into the Writers' Union.

It is a very old tale in all countries that Mr. Glanville tells — the older people wanting to live in accordance with their dimmed lights — and two young people who want to rebel. In Mr. Glanville's book the young man, to solve the dilemma that he feels — that is, being a Jew in an English-speaking world that does not quite accept him — goes to Israel. He is killed in a border skirmish — meanwhile his girl, in London, discovers she is to have a baby.

An still, because Mr. Glanville drills this old nerve — the Jews — his book will interest some people, mostly the very kind of Jews he portrays.

From Mr. Glanville's picture on the jacket one might say he "looks Jewish" — but he might also be said to look like some of the Welsh, Irish, Hungarian.

The book will cause comment.

Bible Thought

Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, no more can ye, except ye abide in me.—John 15:4.

That faith enabled Paul to do all things through Christ that strengthened him. No one has exhausted the potency of faith.

Jim Riley Says:

May Is Think Month

May is think month. This is the month in which more lives and careers are shaped than in any other month of the year. In recent years I've taken time to think about this present month and what it means to the youth of our nation.

It is at this time of the year that students, be they in high school or college, must make a decision — a decision that could govern the rest of their lives.

High school students must make the decision as to whether or not they should enter college and what school of higher learning they should attend.

Those who decide against college or who aren't schol-astically equipped to continue their scholastic work on a higher level, are called upon to decide upon a trade of some sort.

Then, of course there is the border line student, who is forced to make an immediate decision. The decision is whether he is to work exceptionally hard during the final month of school and become a college candidate or just coast along and miss earning the required marks to enter college by the narrowest of margins.

On the surface these decisions may not seem of the utmost importance, but after careful examination they prove their value.

A senior graduating from college and trained in several fields must choose the right profession. He must accept the job he feels will give him the greatest security and the greatest happiness.

A senior in high school must choose the right college or the right trade. A wrong move in either direction could greatly hamper the future life of all concerned.

The high school student, due to his youth, must accept advice from the correct place and learn to figure his talents and possible future.

Regardless of what decisions are made by our present students, the ground work is usually prepared in May. Colleges usually close at the end of this month, while high schools shut their doors early in June.

There are only a few weeks left to make the big step and each should be certain of his footing.

When the step is made, those taking the stride must expect tough sledding. Nothing good ever came easy. Be prepared to face a rough course for a time and be prepared to fight the battle.

But, first the subject should be given plenty of thought and even more preparation.

Robert S. Allen Reports . . .

Uranium Sought Abroad

Washington — The U.S. is confronted with a new kind of "radioactive" problem.

It is a type of "fallout" very different from any previously encountered. Since early this year, a number of countries and foreign concerns have sought to purchase large quantities of U.S. uranium; in some instances as much as several tons.

This is the material used to make nuclear weapons. The nations from which this extraordinary flood of orders has come include Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, India, Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark and Luxembourg.

Its principal features, as outlined to the Joint Atomic Committee, are:

220 pounds (100 kilograms) of U.S. uranium as the maximum exportable to any one nation.

In special instances where

State Department and Atomic Energy Commission authorities are deeply concerned over this development.

Previously, foreign purchases of U.S. uranium were few and in small amounts. But in recent months they have become numerous and considerable. As a result, a wholly new difficulty has arisen in the already highly complex atomic field.

France is particularly causing uneasiness. It is developing its own nuclear weapons, and the first tests are slated for next month in the Sahara Desert.

To cope with this thorny situation, a new policy has been laid down.

Its principal features, as outlined to the Joint Atomic Committee, are:

220 pounds (100 kilograms) of U.S. uranium as the maximum exportable to any one nation.

In special instances where this limitation is exceeded, the recipient nation must give the U.S. the same stringent control over the use and disposition of the uranium that prevails in this country.

Secretary Dulles will discuss this far-reaching new policy with the NATO foreign ministers at their conference, which gets underway in Copenhagen on Monday.

What's Behind It — These restrictions on the foreign purchase of U.S. uranium have three objectives:

To prevent this material from being used for weapons production.

To keep it from getting into Russian and other "undesirable" hands.

To act as a precedent for the International Atomic Energy Agency, in the handling of the uranium pool which it will administer. The U.S. will be a major contributor to this pool for peaceful uses.

These aims are explained in a letter to the Joint Committee from Atomic Commission Chairman Lewis Strauss. He particularly stressed this last point, as follows:

"We recognize that other governments, and the International Agency, look to the U.S. to set a precedent in this field and, for this reason, we are pressing toward a firm source material control policy at an early date."

"(This new policy) will continue in essence our long-standing policy of licensing for export small quantities of normal uranium for essential scientific, medical and industrial purposes, but the quantities which may be so licensed are still well below an amount which has significance from a special (weapons) nuclear material production standpoint."

Strauss also pointed out these new restrictions affect U.S. interests as well as foreign.

"The design when source material control should apply is a difficult one," he wrote Rep. Carl Durham (D.N.C.), committee chairman. "It involves not only our relations with prospective recipient nations, but also those with other major normal uranium producing countries and, indirectly, our domestic uranium producers."

"With regard to other producing nations, preliminary discussions have been held and are continuing with Canada, with United Kingdom and South Africa, in an attempt to establish a uniform policy with respect to safeguards and controls of normal (peaceful uses) uranium."

Fall out — That once-favored plan to build nuclear power plants in Mexico, Brazil, Cuba and other Latin America countries has been quietly shelved. High costs and lack of insurance are the reasons for that. It's explained by H. W. Balgoyen, vice president of American & Foreign Power Company, N.Y., in a letter to the Joint Atomic Committee, concluding as follows: "We are suspending our atomic power program until such time as atomic power becomes more nearly competitive and some of the obstacles which have impeded the development of our program have been overcome. I want to emphasize that this decision represents a suspension of our program and not its complete abandonment."

Representative James Patterson (R., Conn.), member of the Joint Committee, is still convinced AEC Chairman Strauss will be reappointed for another term. Patterson states this view on defiant bases critics, particularly in Congress. From these scrappy comments, Patterson believes Strauss is prepared to wage a last-ditch battle for reappointment when his term expires June 30.

Good Evening Ladies!

Can't Cure Man Of Vanity

Having just met a very vain man, I got to thinking about a lady in Beaumont, Texas, who wrote me recently taking me to task about something I had said about the vanity of her sex.

If I think that vanity is a vice peculiar to the female, I am stupid, she said.

Since I am somewhat vain myself about my long line of affably morose ancestors, I began to look around me at the men I know and you know what — she's right. I have been stupid. No man ever was as vain as a vain man. Nor as obnoxious.

Woman's vanity is confined, for the most part, to personal adornment. She spends hours before a mirror fixing her face to make it look like what it isn't, more hours in beauty parlors and gown salons, and goes forth to strut before other women in full confidence that she's the best looking woman in sight. Maybe she is, and maybe she isn't, but she's happy in thinking she is.

This, I think, is a harmless thing and probably is rooted in the battle of the sexes. A woman may not be looking for a man, but she wants to make it clear to other women that she would have not an iota or a tittle of trouble getting one if she wanted to. If it is true that a woman really dresses for other women, this probably is at the bottom of the matter.

Males Preen Themselves
In seeking the counterpart of this in men, I found it without great difficulty. In walking along the street, I observed no less than half a dozen men pause before store windows, straighten their ties, rearrange the shape of their hats and give long and admiring glances at their reflections.

I also observed that, in seating themselves on bar stools, most men stared at themselves in the mirror, gave their hair a few pats, smiled, grimaced, and settled back with a satisfied look on their faces.

Intellectual vanity, a thing seldom found in women, manifests itself in a number of nauseating ways in men. Most husbands are forever looking down their noses at their wives' intellectual attainments, sometimes with amused tolerance, sometimes with disdain. "Don't try to think, darling, let me tell you what's what" is something most wives have heard, or sensed.

Many over-educated men haven't a grain of common sense in their human relationships, but they strut among their fellow men with a tongue like a two-edged sword, dealing hurts like a berserk Cossack — and if this isn't vanity I don't know the meaning of the word.

A little success in business, which may well have come accidentally, brings far more changes in the male personality than it does in a woman. Such preening, such over-use of the perpendicular pronoun, such showing off! Rousseau said, "Provided a man is not mad, he can be cured of every folly but vanity."

The vanity of a man boasting of his prowess with women is something to behold, although such boasting is always subject to suspicion. Too often it is merely a cover-up for a doleful inadequacy in this field. Rousseau also said, "Self-love makes more liberties than love."

Com — think of it, I owe considerable to Rousseau today. Thank you, Monsieur Rousseau — you said a mouthful.

East Stroudsburg Joint School Board Adopts New Program

Action Taken On Teacher Suggestions

A DYNAMIC, broad-ranging new public relations program was adopted this week by East Stroudsburg Area Joint School Board.

Actions taken on recommendation of the joint system's Teachers Association will:

1—Set up a permanent policy committee to bring about an exchange of ideas so that teachers are aware of board problems and the board may better understand the problems of the teachers and education in general.

2—Create a committee to investigate the "merit rating" system.

3—Set up a joint public relations committee which will explain the schools to the people who live in the areas served by them.

4—Promote closer cooperation between the school board, administration, faculty and the community on educational policies.

5—Provide semi-monthly pay for teachers rather than the once-monthly system now used.

Presentation

Teachers Assn. recommendations were presented to the board by Carl T. Secor, supervising principal. Secor said yesterday "it was the most harmonious meeting we have ever had. The board was extremely receptive to all the proposals made by the teachers."

In its written sheet of "suggestions" the TA said:

"As an association we feel that much can be done, through cooperative effort, to improve community and school morale, to raise educational standards, to attract our best young people to enter the field of teaching, to convince the public that democracy's front line of defense is in the world crises of today is in the classroom."

"In short, we, as educators, feel that our goal should be to provide the best education, by the best teachers, in the best school this community can afford to finance."

"Implementing such a system of education should be initiated at the earliest possible moment. Each of us must be fully cognizant of, willing to accept and ready to fulfill his obligation in the education of our young people. We, the association, therefore suggest the following long-range program."

The sheet then detailed a list of four major recommendations dealing with public relations (items one through four above) and five concerning an "immediate program."

Horace G. Walters, president of the joint board, agreed to appoint a permanent policy committee to work with teachers as soon as possible.

Members of the board gave their approval to a second recommendation that the work of the joint salary committee be continued. The TA said this would lead to an "equalization schedule of salaries to consider fully the implications of maintaining the present maximum and minimum salary scale."

Walters pointed out that the board already has a public relations committee which can be newly energized to meet and work with a teachers committee on FR. Teachers emphasized that a "solid groundwork is needed" for public relations within the community.

Most surprising action taken by the board, with apparent approval of teachers, was the move to investigate the "merit" system.

Walters told teachers attending the meeting that if committees appointed for other work function properly they should "promote closer cooperation" between the board, the teachers and the community.

Of the five additional "immediate program" recommendations, the board agreed to only two. One of these was for semi-monthly pay periods. The second was an endorsement of "better news coverage" of school board activity.

The remaining three recommendations were for a "teacher insurance program; raising of the maximum and minimum pay scales and a concrete salary adjustment program."

The board referred all three of these to its teacher salary committee.

Claus Graef Honored By Arion Band Award

A GERMAN refugee who has been in America only six years won Stroud Union High School's coveted Arion Award last night.

The boy is Claus Graef. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Helmut Graef, Chipfield Drive.

A leader in many school activities, Claus has been particularly active in the band. He is president of the band organization this year. Last night he was student conductor Director of the department is John Pyle who was principal conductor last night.

The Arion Award is presented to the student who has made the most outstanding contributions to instrumental music in the Union public schools during his high school career.

Other officers of the band this year were Peter Fasino, vice president; Barbara LaBar, secretary; and Eloise Cohen, librarian.

The award was presented to young Graef by Joseph Fasino, president of the Music Parents Association.

The near-capacity audience applauded the award and the 13 selections on the combined band-choral concert program.

Among these: "Trumpets Wild" featuring the trumpet trio talents of Henry Roeder, Martin Cracolini and Michael Strunk; "My Regards," a baritone solo featuring Douglas Lee; and a medley of tunes from "Peter Pan" conducted by Numa Snyder and starring an ensemble from the freshmen girls chorus; "Hymn of Brotherhood" conducted by Ralph Harrison.

Members of the band were the following: Flute — Claus Graef, Eleanor Kulp, Eloise Cohen, Margaret Schell, Bethan Denning, Brenda Howitt, Sandra Bell, Elsa Drake, Phyllis Munson, Weldon Adams.

Oboe — Jerry Ifft. Clarinets — Barry Tretheway, Carol Dilline, Carol Willhoite, Don Harmer, Abbie Jane Fris-chostra (directed by Robert Zellner) and the duo-pianists.

This is an ambitious project with more production headaches than most people will ever realize (it has 12 scene changes). For that reason it is even more impressive, because everything about the play is fast-paced and smooth-running.

It will be given its second, and final, performance tonight at 8 at the Junior High auditorium. See it if you can! "Seventeen" is enchanting.

The young men and women who are playing the leading roles are particularly good. So are the set designs, the costumes, the orchestra (directed by Robert Zellner) and the duo-pianists.

Gilbert Dunning has staged the "straight" portions of the play very well, too. But the big bouquets go to the students. They are just about as friendly and effective as any group you'll meet on any stage.

Their names have been listed in previous editions of this newspaper and there is not sufficient space to re-name them this morning. The whole cast was fine.

Rotarians Open District Conference

POCONO MANOR — Rev. George A. Creitz, pastor of Easton's United Church of Christ, last night delivered the opening keynote address of the annual Rotary International District 741 Conference held at Pocono Manor Inn.

The address, "My Visits with Albert Schweitzer," was delivered to more than 300 Rotarians attending the first day of the three-day-long conference.

A keynote address tonight will be "The Shape of Things to Come," by Dr. John H. Furbay, a member of the General Motors Advisory Staff. More than 650 district Rotarians are expected to attend today and tomorrow's portions of the conference.

Host clubs for the conference — themed "Working Toward Understanding" — are those in Stroudsburg, Mount Pocono, Newland and Pocono Mountains.

Yesterday's kickoff began with registration at 10 a. m., and included the following subsequent events:

Introductions and welcoming addresses by Rotary International President's Representative, Douglas A. Stevenson, and Dr. W. R. Toewe, District Governor.

The first plenary session got under way shortly after 2 p. m. with an address by J. Albert Groner of Stroudsburg, Conference Chairman, on "This Is Your Conference."

Presentation of District Governor Dr. Toewe and District Governor Nominee Dr. L. E. Jordan of Dallas preceded an address by Stevenson on "Rotary Around the World."

Followup of the speech was a brief description of United Nations operations by Rotary Foundation Student David Vann of Wyoming and conference legislation.

Today's schedule includes remarks by J. H. Small, of Stroudsburg on "What Makes A Rotary Club Tick," the Rev. Daniel Broadhead, Ph. D., of Tobyhanna, on "What the Foundation Has Meant To Me," and David Vann on "What the Foundation Will Mean To Me."

Representatives of 38 clubs in the district are present for the events of the conference.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

In the Spring, a young man's fancy may turn to love but for those of us no longer young—or at any rate, that young—Spring is more like to lead to a feeling of vague discontent and a desire for a change in our lives to match the change in the world outside.

It is possible to get the feeling of a change while doing the same old things. You can start with your surroundings—and sometimes by merely moving a chair to a new place (where you stumble over it in the dark) or switching the pictures on the wall (leaving white spots where the bigger picture was), you can get the feeling of a stranger in a strange land.

You can take a different route to a familiar destination, and suddenly your eyes see again in contrast to merely looking enough to see where the road turns. New houses going up, new shades of tulips in the gardens, lines of new diapers in the back yards—it's amazing the things you can see when you really look.

An even better suggestion is to see it all through someone else's eyes. No two people ever see the same thing the same way. It's stimulating to see how other people see the world. Some there are who notice the dress, the hat and the jewelry a passing stranger is wearing.

Some who notice rock formations and the shadings of light in a valley. And some who notice houses and the line of rooftops. And if you are tuned to their thinking—then you can see those things, too.

Of course, if worse comes to worse, you can always start changing yourself—not just the way you part your hair or the shade of your nail polish—but you. But that nobody wants to do. They may want to change their looks, their circumstances, or their way of life.

But not the basic ingredients that make them themselves.

Gifts Made To Scotland School

The Gateway Aux. to Post 56, Society of the 28th Division, voted $10 for the Easter and Graduation Funds of the Scotland School and welfare chairman, Joyce Houser, reported flowers had been sent to Emily Decker.

A rummage sale was planned for May 23 and 24 with Emily Mount as chairman; and members are invited to a dinner dance to be held May 3 with Philadelphia Post 27 as hosts.

The next meeting of the local auxiliary will be on May 18 with a picnic weather permitting. Jennie Sipproth is chairman of refreshments.

Do Your 'Hates' Affect Relations With People?

What we think about people affects our whole lives. Therefore, if we want to change the fabric of our lives, it seems to me we've got to change our feelings about people.

This can be done a lot more readily than would appear on the surface, since the whole subject has been muddled up and made unduly complicated.

Simple Example
To take a simple example, suppose you hate the name of Jane. You hate it because somewhere along the line you knew a girl named Jane who was unpleasant or in some way unattractive.

Whenever you read a book that has a heroine named Jane, or meet a new person named Jane, your feeling about her is prejudiced. All you have to do, then, is to persist until you find a couple of attractive, pleasant and delightful people named Jane. Then every time that name comes up, you have pleasant instead of unpleasant feelings.

Select The Good
This is, as I say, a simple example. But in every area of life, we can, if we choose, select good people or good things so that our lives become a series of pleasant images instead of unpleasant ones.

I had to cope with this myself because frankly, the word "volunteer" always had a bad connotation for me.

When I thought of a volunteer worker I thought of an aimless, lazy social-butterfly type of person whose motive for volunteer work was compounded of a desire to fill unoccupied time a morbid curiosity about people in trouble and a desire to see her name in the paper. I knew that that was probably not true of all volunteers, but enough of the ones I had known fitted in that category to give that word an unpleasant meaning for me.

In the years since then, however, I have, partly through luck and partly through determination, encountered so many perfectly wonderful volunteer workers that

Welcome May With Music, Dance At Hamilton Twp.

Hamilton Township—Susan Stulgaitis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Stulgaitis, of Stroudsburg RD 1, was crowned May Queen by school principal Edward Doney, at the first coronation ceremony ever held at the Hamilton Elementary School, Sciota, on Thursday afternoon, May 1, before a large crowd of spectators on the playground.

Queen Susan, a pupil in the sixth grade, was attired in a full skirted pale green gown. Her attendants wore pastel shaded gowns. All members of the royal party carried bouquets of Spring flowers.

Attendants to the Queen were Deanna Beamer, Susan Brewer, Sandra Fetherman, Carolyn Hedgdon, Susan LaBar, Virginia Simon, Karla Walter, Donna Bak, Sally Feitig, Leonie Gulick, Sharon Keiper, Lois Shafer, Diane Toth, Margaret Williams, Louise Heller and Dorothy May Marsh. Crown bearer was Amy Young.

Prior to the coronation the Stroudsburg High School Band presented a concert under the direction of John Pyle.

Members of all grades of the school did a colorful Mexican Hat Dance and a special dance was presented by members of the upper classes.

The Hamilton Elementary School Band, under the direction of Walter Lane, played a number of selections.

An 88-voice chorus, composed of children of the fourth and fifth grades, sang "A May Greeting" and "The Merry Month of May."

There were approximately 250 young people taking part in the program. About 225 participated in the Mexican Hat Dance.

Plans had been made to have a Maypole dance but due to the gusty winds this was impossible.

Director of the program was Mrs. Mildred Cyphers. Her assistant was Mr. Doney. Mrs. Cyphers was also accompanist and dance instructor. Other co-operating teachers were Mrs. Marguerite Gray, Miss Helen Kieruff, John Mackes, Mrs. Lucy Warner, Mrs. Ethel Rinker, Bertram Hilbert, Walter Lane, and Miss Mary Shiffer.

The date falls on the annual Boys Day in Japan. The program will feature several special items on Japan, and songs by Mrs. John Pentz Jr.

Mrs. William Wunder, Mrs. Thaddeus Wilkins and Mrs. Clayton Heimbach will be hostesses.

the whole word has undergone a revolution for me.

I think, for example, of Marguerite Johnson, who is a volunteer for the American Cancer Society in Dearborn, Michigan.

Public-Spirited Women
Marguerite Johnson is Safety Commissioner for the city of Dearborn, with a staff of more than 300 men working for her. She is a dynamic, public-spirited and hard-working woman, who nearly five years ago had a successful operation for cancer. As soon as she was cured, she volunteered to the American Cancer Society and offered to do whatever she could to help other people realize that you could have a good and productive life even after such an operation.

As I say, our worlds are made up in a large part by the thoughts we think. I am happier now, with my thoughts peopled with volunteers like Mrs. Johnson, than I ever was living with my earlier conception.

Mrs. Quig Elected To Synod Office

Mrs. Fred Quig of Stroudsburg was elected first vice president of the East Pennsylvania Synodical Women's Guild at the ninth biennial meeting held Wednesday in Nazareth. Mrs. Charles W. K. Shafer was re-elected as president. The full staff of officers, elected for a two-year term was installed by Rev. Thomas D. Garner, D.D., pastor of their hosts church.

Mrs. Shafer announced that in the past two years, the Synodical guild contributed $6,000 toward projects of the church, and $12,000 in Thank Offerings.

Rev. Frank W. Teske, D. D., president of the synod, and Dr. James E. Wagner, president of the church, were also speakers at the day-long sessions attended by 300 members.

Tobyhanna WSCS Elects Mrs. R. L. Pope

Tobyhanna — Mrs. Robert L. Pope was elected president of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Tobyhanna Methodist Church at their recent meeting.

Other officers elected included Mrs. W. LeRoy Hay, vice president and secretary of spiritual life; Mrs. Stanford Schane, treasurer; Mrs. James Frutchey, secretary; Mrs. William Kirkhuff, secretary of Christian social relations and local church activities; Mrs. Fred Pope, secretary or missionary education and service.

Birthday Surprise For Mrs. Werkheiser

Tannersville — A birthday surprise was in store for Mrs. Russell Werkheiser on Friday night by friends belonging to Camp 151, P. O. of A.

Mrs. Werkheiser was sewing when the door bell rang and her friends surprised her to such an extent that she did not know how to entertain them. Her three daughters and a daughter-in-law took over the party, furnished entertainment and organized games. Refreshments were served at the close of the party, including a birthday cake baked by Mrs. Dora Hartman.

Others present were Mrs. Ann Crimbling, Mrs. Margaret Burkholder, Mrs. Lizzie Butz, Mrs. Helen Starnes, Mrs. Alta Metzgar, Mrs. Estella Granacher, Mrs. Laura C. Neiring, Mrs. Gertrude Kresge, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Werkheiser and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Snyder and family, and Mrs. Ted Rowe and daughter, Susan.

WSCS Honors Bernards At Parsonage

Tannersville — The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Tannersville Methodist Church met at the parsonage with Rev. and Mrs. LeRoy Bernards this week. Mrs. Albert Besecker was in charge of the worship service, and all the members took part in the program, "March of Youth in Missions."

The pastor compared the children of past years with those of today, seeing no difference in the children only in the times. This was the last meeting with Rev. and Mrs. Bernards since they will be leaving the charge after the annual Conference in Philadelphia, May 14 to 18.

Mrs. Horace Werkheiser presided at the business meeting. The May 26 meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myles Dailey.

Fellowship followed the meeting when Mrs. Estelle Granacher presented the Bernards with a gift from the group.

Those present included: Mrs. S. B. Howell, Mrs. Myles Dailey, Mrs. Frances Besecker, Miss Nancy Besecker, Mrs. Albert Besecker, Mrs. Horace Werkheiser, and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Shook.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. G. R. Flagler and Mrs. John Britton.

James Stout

Community Hall Setting For Party

A surprise birthday party was held for James Stout, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Stout, of Pocono, Wednesday night celebrating his 15th birthday.

The party was held at the Pocono Summit Community Hall. The hall was decorated with red and white crepe paper streamers and balloons that led to the two birthday cakes.

After the refreshments were served and he opened his gifts, games and dancing were enjoyed.

Those attending the party were: LeRoy Jr., Nancy, Francis and Gladys Stout, Charles Binkley, Donald and Joseph Shimko, Emma Dippie, David Gunther, Earl, Carl and Dolly Ann Gottschall, Leon Shiner, Patsy and Gloria Bobby, Sandy and Raymond Serfass, Marilyn Meekes, Cloyd Miller and William Yalowsky, all of Pocono; Brenda Franks and Mary Beth Berger, of Pocono Lake; Linda Shelton, Christine Corcoran, Janet Stout, Diana and Larry Stiff, Charles Tompkey and Gwendell Pratt, all of Tobyhanna and the hostess, Mrs. LeRoy Stout.

Those sending presents but unable to attend were: Barbara Shiner, Jerry DeSanto and Mrs. Lela Dennis.

School May Resume-- But It Won't Be Same

By Leonard Randolph
ANALOMINK School will go back in session this coming Fall right on schedule—but things won't be quite the same. Addie Weidman won't be there.

Mrs. Weidman, a soft-voiced woman with a maternal smile, will retire from her job as a full-time teacher at the school at the end of this term.

It will be the end of her 34th year as a teacher.

She was born Addie Van Why. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Moses Van Why and they lived in Middle Smithfield, where Addie received her early education.

Later she was graduated from Polytechnic Institute in Gilbert and the State Normal School in East Stroudsburg, where she has done "refresher" work several summers since graduation.

When she was graduated from the college, she was still not old enough (18) for certification as a teacher. But in 1913, she was. And she went to work in the one-room school in Porter Township, Pike County.

She stayed one year at Porter. Then she moved to the school at Resica in Monroe County. During the ensuing years she taught at Smoky Hill, the River School, and Central School, all in Middle Smithfield; Poplar Valley and Mount Zion Schools in Stroud; Franklin Hill in Smithfield, in that order.

Then she moved to Analomink for her first (four-year period) assignment as a teacher in that school. At the end of the four years she went to work in the Shawnee School and from there to Price.

While teaching at Shawnee, Miss Addie Van Why became Mrs. Charles Weidman. During the year at Price School she decided to leave teaching, temporarily, and she did.

She returned to teaching at Price and remained there one year. Then, in 1942, she went back to Analomink. She has been teaching there ever since.

In 1942, Addie Weidman taught four grades at Analomink. She was responsible for the education in all basic subjects of 45 children—the largest number she has ever had. Today, she has only 18.

Analomink was a different kind of school. All the others had been "one-room" schools with one teacher. At Analomink the instruction burden was split between two teachers.

And education had begun to change, too. In those earliest years, young Addie Van Why had to do everything there was to be done in the one-room schoolhouse.

To be a teacher, then, you had to be a carpenter, a cleaning woman, a full-time teacher, a part-time mother, the fire-builder, the inspector and cook.

The practice of economy was mandatory. Pupils used halves of pencils. The teacher sliced them in half before they were distributed. Most of the time the children used their slates.

The desks came equipped with the almost-permanent fixture: a bottle of water and a sponge to clean off the slate.

Mrs. Weidman has no regrets about those years. "It was hard work, but it was fun," she says. "We did have fun, you know. We did lots of things together, the children and I. We didn't have much to work with, but we had a wonderful time."

But then Addie has had a "wonderful time" all the way through her teaching career. And she has a philosophy to guarantee it. Asked why she had chosen teaching, she said, with little reflection:

"Because I like it. And because I really love youngsters. That's my best excuse." There was a pause. Then she added: "I really don't think you should teach if you don't."

In another age she would very likely have become a teacher of reading:

"I love to read. And I love teaching it to children. There's something beautiful about helping a child to read and watching him turn the pages of books when he's learned."

"If you can get children to read early in the grades, most of their worries are over. I don't think older students have half as much trouble with other subjects—mathematics and other fields—if they have a good foundation in reading."

"But you have to teach them to read to understand what they're reading—not just for the sake of getting through the book."

"I had a desire, once, to teach just one grade instead of three or four or more. I told Mr. (Earl) Groner (Stroud Union superintendent) that I wanted to teach reading, someday, and just that alone. But I never did."

The 34 years she has been in actual teaching have brought much change to education. But they have changed Addie very little.

Her main concern is still the child himself—his learning, his life and his love of these things.

And she has watched the children in her classrooms change before her eyes, day after day; has seen them leave the rooms for the last time, glad to be going, happy to be growing up. And she has watched them return months and years later, all changed and new, matured into men and women, married, ready to bear children.

Statistics Reveal Mental Patients Coming Home From Hospital At Accelerated Rate

(EDITOR'S NOTE — In the interest of better mental health, The Daily Record presents this series of articles by Dr. George S. Stevenson with the cooperation of the Monroe County Mental Health Association. Dr. Stevenson is medical consultant to the National Association for Mental Health and was presented by the local group here last December at a public meeting.)

By George S. Stevenson
IS IT TRUE that there's "new hope" for the mentally ill? Are they really recovering at a faster rate than ever before? What kind of treatment would a member of my family receive if he had to go to a mental hospital? These are typical questions I find every day in my mail basket.

First of all, statistics have shown that mental patients are coming home at an accelerated rate.

During 1957 the hospital population continued to go down just as it did during 1956. We don't know exactly why this hopeful picture has come about.

It's probably for a combination of reasons: the new drugs, better hospital treatment — perhaps most promising—the spirit of hopefulness with which hospital officials are attacking this problem.

When all of these are put together we have the kind of good treatment needed to send patients home. It's been shown that when care is good, seven out of 10 patients recover within a short period of time after admission.

To illustrate what such a good hospital is like and the kind of treatment your relatives would receive in it, the National Association for Mental Health has published an excellent booklet called, "New Hope."

It depicts, through pictures, what happens to a mental patient when she enters a mental hospital. It traces a young woman patient's hospitalization from illness back to health. Her admission into the hospital world; the beginning of her care and cure; her advance back to health through work and play; and her return home.

Unfortunately, the hospital shown is not a typical public mental hospital, for the majority are still understaffed, inadequately equipped and overcrowded. In spite of having fewer patients.

But the booklet does show the kind of good care and

East Borough High Hires Seven Teachers

Board Okays Letter To County

SEVEN NEW teachers were hired this week by East Stroudsburg Area Joint school system.

The joint school board approved hiring of the following at its meeting Thursday night:

Russell Barlett, East Stroudsburg RD 2, $4,000 yearly to teach senior high biology and social studies.

Alston Jones, 96 Analomink St., formerly of Jim Thorpe, $4,000 yearly to teach senior high social studies.

Mrs. M. W. Baumgartner, Cresco, $2,700 as a part-time Latin instructor in the senior high school.

Richard Wentz, formerly of Palmerton, now of East Stroudsburg, $3,800 to teach in the elementary system.

Marilyn Miller, Pocono Pines, $3,400 yearly to teach third grade in East Stroudsburg elementary.

Mrs. Marian Mery, East Stroudsburg, $3,400 to teach elementary in Smithfield School.

LeRue Stelfox, a graduate of Pennsylvania State University this term, at $4,000 to teach junior high general science.

The school board also authorized supervising principal Carl T. Secor to hire other teachers the system may need for the coming year.

Additional authorization given by the board will permit: Advertising for bids for furniture in two first grade rooms in the North Courtland St. elementary building.

Repairs to the roof of the N. Courtland St. building, and minor repairs to the heating system at J. M. Hill School.

Adoption of a school calendar for 1958-59 with Sept. 3 as opening and June 10 as closing dates.

Purchase of 300 yards of top soil material for the football stadium.

Sending of a letter to Monroe County Commissioners thanking them for their prompt action in writing to the State Department of Public Instruction a note which pledged action on assessment ratio in the tax equalization program.

New Plans
Filing of new plans for parts of building programs for Smithfield and Middle Smithfield Schools calling for all-purpose rooms of 2400 square feet rather than the present plan for 1800 square feet. The latter is the reimbursable dimension set by the State, but directors feel that larger rooms are needed at the two schools.

The board changed its next regular meeting to June 12 due to conflict between Commencement night and the regular meeting date.

Resignations of Charlotte Bach and Eleanor Helmbach as elementary teachers were accepted by the board.

Three-Day Meeting
SHAWNEE — Shawnee Inn will be the scene of a three day meeting of members from the Atlantic and New England Divisions of the National Assn. of Waste Material Dealers.

Special Practice
HARRY MULLINS, musical director of the Kemp Kadets, announced last night there will be a special one-hour practice drill Sunday at 2 p. m. at East Stroudsburg playground.

New Course In School

NEWFOUNTLAND — Greene-Dreher-Stirling Joint School will add a commercial course to the regular curriculum beginning with the Fall term.

Meeting in a special session this week, the joint board of directors approved inauguration of the commercial course at the school, which now offers a college preparatory and a vocational course.

Room
Room for the new class will be made in the room adjoining the cafeteria.

The board is seeking a teacher for the class.

Area In 43rd Legal District

Monroe and Pike counties constitute, at the present time, the 43rd Judicial District. They were originally a part of the 11th Judicial District which was created in 1811 to include Luzerne, Wayne, Susquehanna, and Bradford counties. Pike was added in 1814, and Monroe in 1836.

In 1844, Monroe County was transferred to the 21st Judicial District, together with Schuylkill and Carbon Counties. In 1849 the 23rd Judicial District was created and Monroe and Pike counties were transferred to that district which also included Wayne and Carbon counties. In 1874 Monroe and Carbon counties were taken from the 22nd District and made into the new 43rd District. In 1901 Carbon County was made a separate district, the 56th, and Pike County was transferred from the 22nd District and added to Monroe in the 43rd District.

Pike and Monroe counties have remained as the 43rd Judicial District to the present time.

In the 83 years of its existence, the 43rd Judicial District has had only seven president judges, two of whom served one year each.

The first president judge was Samuel S. Dreher, a native of Stroudsburg, who had previously been president judge of the 22nd Judicial District from 1870 to 1875. He became president judge of the 43rd District on its creation and served until his death in 1893. The judge was born at Stroudsburg on April 10, 1824, the oldest of nine children. He was admitted to the bar in May of 1846. Dreher Township, Wayne County, has been named for him. In 1878 he presided at the trial of two men, in Carbon County, who were accused of participating in gang murders which were prevalent throughout the anthracite coal region. They were found guilty and sentenced to death to be hanged at 10:30 a. m. on Jan. 14, 1879. A reprieve was granted by the Governor, but the executions took place before the reprieve was delivered.

John B. Storm was appointed to succeed Judge Dreher, and served until 1894 when Allen Craig was elected. Judge Craig served until his death in December, 1902. Wilton A. Erdman was then appointed and served until January, 1904. Charles B. Staples, who was elected president judge in 1903 and re-elected in 1913, served until his death in 1917. He was recognized as one of the leading trial judges of his time.

Judge Staples was succeeded by Samuel E. Shull who served as president judge of the 43rd Judicial District until his death on June 4, 1945. Judge Shull was assigned by the Supreme Court to try many important cases throughout the Commonwealth.

The present president judge, Fred W. Davis, was appointed on June 12, 1945. He was elected in 1947 for a 10-year term and re-elected in 1957. He is a worthy successor of those who have preceded him in that capacity.

In conclusion, I think a universal understanding of our system, if that were possible, would insure peace and progress and tend to preclude the collapse of civilization.

With the Rule of Law we have individual liberty and legal protection; without it life would be empty and often short. Whether it prevails depends to a great extent upon judges and lawyers—that is, on the proper functioning of our judicial system, the keystone of our constitutional structure. The preservation of the Rule of Law it not without effort and vigilance on the part of all of us.

The nation-wide observance held on May 1, 1958, "was an important and significant demonstration to the world that the American people are united in their determination to preserve the way of life which our institutions of law and justice have made possible."

40 People At Testimonial For Meinhart

MORE THAN 40 persons attended a testimonial dinner last night, honoring Herman Meinhart, who is retiring after four and one-half years as scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 97, sponsored by Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg.

Troop committeemen and executives who spoke included Dr. T. E. Terrill, David Bernbaum, John R. Pentz, Jr., David L. Miller, Stanley R. Melvin, Charles W. Reid, Clifford Cramer, John H. Kunkle, Jesse E. Kulp and Rev. William F. Wunder, church pastor.

Toastmaster Raymond Poorstra was toastmaster. Speaking for the troop were Kenneth L. Miller, senior patrol leader and Life Scout and Mike Poorstra, Eagle Scout.

Meinhart and his wife also spoke briefly.

New Owners Of Store

MR. AND MRS. Lawrence Butz, formerly of Bushkill, are the new operators of Vogler's store at 145 S. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

The store was owned and operated for 30 years by the late Anton Vogler and his wife, Caroline. After his death a year ago, Mrs. Vogler continued to operate the store until Mr. and Mrs. Butz took over April 1.

Renovations
Mrs. Butz said yesterday that she and her husband plan to renovate and modernize the store's facilities sometime in the near future.

The store offers personalized service and has its own meat displays and confectionery.

Daily Record Survey

Administrators Feel Revisions Necessary

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is one of a series of articles on Monroe County education. Each will be based on the results of the county-wide survey conducted by the author for the Daily Record.

By Leonard Randolph

ADMINISTRATORS in Monroe County schools feel that a revision of the "system" in the Department of Public Instruction in Harrisburg would be enormously helpful.

In setting the policies which, to a large degree, govern education in general throughout the State, the Department has neglected to keep its own internal policies up to date.

A number of local superintendents, principals and supervisors feel that the Department should try harder to bring more new blood in and to encourage the top men in education to work for the State.

This, at present, is not being done. And it accounts for a lack of respect among professional educators for the Department, local administrators feel.

Their comments on State policies cover a broad range of subjects. But the most important is the one cited above.

These are sample opinions expressed by administrators in answer to Question 12: "How can the DPL State Council of Education and the legislature play more effective roles in building stronger instruction programs for our schools?"

— Make the department more attractive to the people in education so that they will want to work for it if they get the opportunity. If the people in the department are the real leaders in the State, school men will look to them for leadership and advice. The legislature can make this possible by providing the funds necessary to make the positions attractive.

— Set up standards for supervisors. Provide graduate work in the teachers colleges. Meet the salary scales of other States — or better them. Have a more realistic outlook on educational standards. Get policies out of the DPL.

— More State aid to local districts. Closer supervision of local supervisors by the State; a uniform policy might help. Raise requirements for admission to first grade from the present five years to five and one-half or six years.

— Cut out mixing vocational education and academic education in the same school. Cut out snap courses. Reduce extra-curricular activities where the "tail wags the dog." Stop pupils thinking that a school is an amusement park and go back a few steps to the old academy where you learned or you were out. I do not believe in vocational education in a public school. If a pupil cannot succeed at the given program, he can at least develop a wholesome attitude toward his fellow men.

— Small weak school districts must be consolidated into larger, more effective units. The DPL must enforce these measures.

Higher minimum standards must be adopted. Teacher certification must be reviewed and strengthened. A strong DPI with wise and determined leadership is a "must." Legislature must furnish enough funds for department needs.

— Teacher "loads" — especially in the lower grades — should be set. There should be penalties for overloading. The reimbursable unit (system on which appropriations are paid) should be the same (22 pupils per unit) throughout the system. A revision of English instruction is badly needed.

— They should each, or all three, act on recommendations coming out of Gov. Leader's conference (in January).

— This is the weakest line in our system. The State should pay salaries which will entice good men to come to the Department. It has been a political football for too many years. These departments must be given a free hand to set up courses of study.

— Hiring and retaining for longer than two weeks adequately experienced people for each office. Paying DPI personnel as much or more than they could get in public school work. There are often far more able people in the "field" than at the head of the various departments at the State level. The legislature must consider education a greater importance than at present.

— New legislation is urgent to alter basic "mental age" for first grade enrollment. In States setting "six year" as legal, learning gets a good start and failure in primary grades is partially averted. Both philosophically and educationally, practice proves that many "5-year-olds" are not mature enough to cope with first grade expectancy. Legislation which prevents initial failure should help.

Coolbaugh Features May Dance

TOBYHANNA — Coolbaugh Township High School students held their "May Dance" last night in the school gymnasium.

At the height of the gala affair Barbara Panna was crowned "May Queen." Miss Panna, an 11th grader, was chosen by the vote of her fellow students in an election.

Six Contestants

She was one of six contestants. The others served as attendants at the dance and during the coronation.

Students had decorated the gymnasium with Spring flowers, a trellis adorned with blossoms and streamers of crepe paper hanging from the ceiling.

Two Withdrawals In Derby But Race Points To Three

By JOHN CRANDLER
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Two more sudden withdrawals reduced the field for the 84th Kentucky Derby Saturday to 14 horses, but did nothing to shake the belief that Tim Tam, Silky Sullivan and Jewel's Reward are the ones to beat in the great 3-year-old classic.

Tim Tam, the colt of the three-time Kentucky Derby winner, entered by Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham, was scratched because of a bruised right forefoot. Can Trust, from the Hasty House Farm of Allie E. Reuben, also came out and will go in an easier race on the Derby Day program.

Jammed With Visitors
This old city on a horseshoe bend in the Ohio River was jammed by thousands of visitors from all parts of the country and overseas, awaiting the moment when the massed bands play "My Old Kentucky Home" and the horses parade to the post for the 4:30 p.m. (EST) start. On most lips was the big question: Can Silky Sullivan, the California crawler, come through with his patented late charge and overcome the leaders in time to grab the greenbacks and glory?

Tim Tam, the speedy Calumet Farm colt who rules the 2 to 1 choice, certainly won't be back there keeping Silky company in the early stages. Neither will Jewel's Reward, the big gun in the Maine Chance Farm battery which was cut to two starters because of the mishap to Tim Tam. Ebony Pearl now is the only running mate for Jewel's Reward, with the entry at 7 to 2.

Silky 2nd Choice
Silky ruled the second choice at 5 to 2.

The crowd, expected to be perhaps the biggest in derby history—over 100,000 if the weatherman cooperates—will make the odds when it begins working over the parimutuel machines. Silky at least will be the sentimental favorite, for his late rushes at times from 40 lengths off the pace have endeared him to sports fans.

Scattered showers were forecast for Friday night and Saturday, with a possibility that a thunderstorm or two might turn the present fast track into the quagmire it was earlier in the week.

The nation's millions can peek into the picture via the television screen, or get the derby lowdown by radio. The broadcasts CBS will run from 4:15 to 4:45 p.m. EST.

Other Entries
Others entered are Gane Fishin', Flamingo, Martine Rullah, Nouruddin, Warren G., Lincoln Road, Red Hot Pistol, A Dragon Killer, Chance It Tony and Benedicto. A Dragon King may come out if the track is soft.

If 14 start, the race still will be the second richest derby. The jackpot would gross $160,500, the winner netting $116,400. Tops was the $123,500 grabbed by Needles when he came from next to last in a field of 16 to win in 1956.

Turley Cools Off A's For 8-1 Yank Win

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Turley cooled off the upstart A's from Kansas City Friday with a four-hitter while his New York Yankee mates rolled to an 8-1 victory despite Bob Cerv's eighth home run of the season.

Cerv, an ex-Yankee continued his tremendous spring surge with a second-inning homer off Turley on a 3-2 pitch.

After Cerv's blow ended Turley's 19-inning scoreless streak for 1958, Bullet Bob allowed only three more hits.

The Yankees put the crusher on loser Ralph Terry with three runs in the first inning thanks to some sloppy fielding. Hank Bauer singled off Leo Lopez' knee at first and Norm Siebern was safe when Terry fumbled his bunt for an error. Tony Kubek, playing his first game of the year in place of the injured Mickey Mantle, bunted to Terry for a single that loaded the bases. Terry fielded the ball cleanly but nobody was on third base to take a throw.

Yogi Berra singled in two runs, and Bill Skowron's single scored Kubek with the third run. Kansas City 010 000—8 1 1 New York 302 000—8 1 0

Bolt Takes Lead In Colonial Open

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Pugnacious Tommy Bolt sloshed over a water-logged course for a par 70 Friday to push into first place in the $25,000 Colonial Country Club Golf Tournament.

His 138 for 36 holes gave him a 2-stroke lead over Stan Leonard, the Canadian, while Arnold Palmer, who had topped the field at the end of the first round with a great 65, despaired with a 7-over-par 77 that dropped him well down the list.

Eastburg High Loses, 3-2

Lupin Drops Overtime To Pen Argyl

EAST STROUDSBURG High's lefthander Charley Lupin went 10 full innings but fell to the combined offerings of Dick Voorhes and Bill Ruggiero as Pen Argyl defeated the Cavaliers, 3-2, in extra innings in a Lehigh-Northampton League tilt at Eastburg playground field yesterday.

LUPIN scattered 11 hits before succumbing to the Green Wave in overtime. Ruggiero, who pitched the last four frames, picked up the mound verdict.

Pen Argyl punched across the winning run in the 10th on a two-base error by Frank Gimble and a clutch single by Dick Weaver up the middle.

Trailing 2-1 going into their last times of bats in the regulation game of seven innings the Cavaliers scored a run on Ray Rogers' life on an error and Evan (Doc) Reese's single to center.

Reese Gets Trio

Eastburg got their first run in the fifth on Reese's single and Bob Herman's double which scored Reese.

Lupin fanned nine during his extra time on the mound. Voorhes fanned six, and Ruggiero also whiffed a half dozen.

Reese led the Cavaliers attack with three hits—all singles. Pen Argyl's leading batters were Weaver and Sid Abruzzese with three safeties apiece.

Golfing

WITH ALEX MORRISON
LESSON No. 5
USE OF HANDS

Grip firmly with the left little finger, also right forefinger and thumb. Have both hands placed at same angle to the club.

After approximating the correct body action and head position it is relatively easy to master the proper use of the hands. The real function of the hands is to hold the club in the proper striking position while the striking force is generated by movements of the body and arms. When functioning properly the hands move in harmony with the body. This harmony is assured when you place both hands at the same angle to the club

Bennington Seen Rousing Welcome

ST. LOUIS — Drake Coach John Bennington appears likely to get the head basketball coaching job at St. Louis University — unless the University of Iowa hires him first.

St. Louis University officials are expected to move fast to forestall Iowa, which reportedly has contacted the 36-year-old Bennington about the coaching job there. A decision may be made by St. Louis before Sunday.

Iowa Coach Frank O'Connor was killed in an automobile accident last week.

Bennington's Drake team finished with a 13-12 record last season, 7-7 in the Missouri Valley Conference.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

For Saturday, May 3, 1958
March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A mild planetary setup. If you do not have to work, take things in a comfortable, slow manner; plan program; don't fret.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Keep your program suitable, leaving the more difficult tasks for solving all later in day if then you can double efforts more easily.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Keep efforts within your capacity. Avoid extremes in work, pleasure, everything. A good day in which to catch up with correspondence, social obligations, personal matters.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Some pleasant vibrations linger from yesterday. Do make the most of them and you should achieve headliners, perhaps unexpected gains. Rejoice to relieve tension.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — A conservative attitude will ease your tendencies now. A good day to check over week's achievement and to learn where you can make corrections.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — It may be opportune now to keep long enough to learn better ways and means to handle routine programs. Don't overburden yourself with extra chores just to help others. Think of YOUR tasks.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Good advice of Taurus today. If you plan well, have system and good cheer, you can turn a mediocre period into a fruitful one. Your innate cleverness and calmness will be big aids.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Some pleasant and helpful influences. If you keep an even tempo and submerge tension you can have a satisfactory day. Be cheerful; have faith.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Jupiter's present aspect suggests that you lighten your purse strings and that you exercise care in investments, savings, signing agreements or debts involving money or time.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn) — Some generous vibrations. Be moderate, careful about expenditures and you can accomplish more than you think. Enjoy some rest.

January 24 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Influences neither very stimulating nor restrictive. Nevertheless, it would be wise to be cautious in financial deals, all spending and investing. Attend to urgent matters, then rest.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — You should enjoy many benefits, pleasures and needed diversion now. Do not let necessary tasks disturb you. Have cheer.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with strength and individuality. You have splendid memory and can improve upon and develop others' projects as well as creating on your own. You are innately happy, generous people, faithful to a trust, and can be very capable business leaders, bankers, government employees, military advisers. Never overindulge in drinking or go to extremes in eating, drinking.

Cramer Steals ABC Limelight

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — Morris Cramer of Albany, N. Y., stole the limelight from the St. Louis Budweisers in the American Bowling Congress Tournament minor events Thursday when he took second place in the all-events and third in the doubles with Joe Schmidt.

Cramer totaled 2,030 for the nine-game route, just three pins less than the 2,033 that has kept Steve Nagy of St. Louis on the top of the all-events heap since April 11. Cramer rolled 655 in the team event Wednesday night and Thursday had 692 in the doubles and 683 in the singles.

The St. Louis Budweisers, who rolled into fourth in the team event Wednesday night with 3,198, put on a good overall performance in the minor events but none of the members managed to break into the top ten standings of the singles, doubles, or all-events.

The men's team which won games so far, will meet Leningrad and Latvian squads. The women will meet Leningrad and Russian republic quintets.
